In the past man's worst enemy was nature. He lived under the continual threat of famine and pestilence, a wet summer could bring death to whole nations, and every winter was a menace. Mountains stood like a barrier between people and people, as sea was less a highway than an impassable division. Today nature, though still an enemy, is an enemy almost completely conquered. Modern agriculture assures us of an ample food supply. Modern transportation has made the resources of the entire planet accessible to all its inhabitants. Modern medicine and sanitation allow dense populations to cover the ground without risk of pestilence. True, we are still at the mercy of the more violent natural convulsions. Against earthquake, flood and hurricane man has, as yet, devised no adequate protection. But these major cataclysms are rare. At most times, nature is no longer formidable, she has been subdued.

  - (i) How has modern medicine helped man ?
  - (ii) Has man succeeded to control all the furies of nature and Why ?
  - (iii) Use the word "Devise" as a noun and as a verb.
  - (iv) Give a suitable title to the passage.
  - (v) Find the words from the passage which means the same as, 'reach', 'shake'.
