Carol Jensen had been in a coma since November 6, when she'd been involved in a car accident that left her brain stem bruised. She'd also suffered a dislocated hip, multiple contusions and trauma to several internal organs, which caused massive bleeding into her peritoneal cavity.

After being stabilized in the emergency department, she was taken directly to the operating room where surgeons performed a splenectomy and inserted a gastrostomy. She was then sent to the neurological floor for observation.

At the time, taking care of carol was the hardest thing I had ever had to do so as a nurse. I was used to seeing elderly people on my floor, but I couldn't get used to taking care of this young women who had so much to live for.

 - (i) Define Coma?
 - (ii) Why was Carol Jensen in Coma?
 - (iii) What other problem did Carol have after the accident ?
 - (iv) List the treatment Carol had immediately after the accident ?
 - (v) Why was it hardest thing for a nurse to take care of Carol ?
